Therein he differed widely from Napoleon and other military leaders, in different ages of the world, whose craving for military glory has reddened the pages of hatory.

Grant fought first of all for peace. His fundamental idea was once well expressed in happy language employed in a great assemblage of Union soldiers of the war: "We are determined to have peace, even if we have to fight for it!" Great emergencies bring forth great men to meet the demands of the hour. Grant and Lincoln are striking examples in American history.

The leason of Grant's life is an inspiration to the youth of his couptry. It shows, above all else, that after all there is such a thing as honest reward.

There was no sound of marching, and no trend of coming feet, and no some see the vision From the lefty memtain's away; Darw me no cound of but, and no cole of the dram, and no cole of the dram, Was by ansorring colous flung.

And orchardists and fariners especially are invited to examine the mechines and get Ostalia. The Stataman Evaporator is made of galvanued iron and hence is fire-proof. The Trair is nothing shouldy in its construction. It is more easily moved about than any other is market. This alone is of great advantage to the fruit dryer. In simplicity of construction taxonic, and in cheapness nothing of the kind one compute with it.
